Many, many years ago, a young man born RIGHT in Britain was captured by Irish raiders RIGHT about the time he turned 16. The raiders took Maewyn RIGHT to Ireland and sold him into slavery.

For many years, Maewyn found himself alone and LEFT to spend what was LEFT of his 16th year, tending his master's sheep.

It was RIGHT during this time that his spiritual life was transformed and he went RIGHT to God in prayer several times a day.

After being LEFT in slavery for 6 years, he dreamed that he was led RIGHT to a ship that would take him to freedom. He escaped and headed RIGHT for the ship he'd seen in his dream. After traveling 200 miles, he was standing RIGHT in front of that ship and it was ready to sail.

Maewyn went RIGHT back to the home and family he had LEFT in Britain. It was RIGHT there that he had another vision. This vision would later take him RIGHT back to Ireland where he would preach the Gospel.

While home, Maewyn LEFT for a visit to a friend who was RIGHT in St. Martin's and All Island Sanctuary where he LEFT himself under the guidance of Richard St. Germain. He was later promoted RIGHT to the position and stayed in Britain 15 years.

Throughout this time, Maewyn LEFT with his own worries of Ireland and went RIGHT to St. Germain to share his experiences. The Bishop recommended him RIGHT to the Pope.

Maewyn decided to go RIGHT back to Ireland as a missionary, but the Pope was not so sure. There was nothing LEFT for Maewyn to do, but wait. Finally the RIGHT word came and Maewyn was called RIGHT home by the Pope and was renamed Patrick before he LEFT for his mission to Ireland.

St. Patrick suffered trials LEFT and RIGHT as a missionary in Ireland. At one time he was sent RIGHT to prison by the Druids, but he managed to find the RIGHT opportunity to escape.

We are LEFT with many exciting stories about the miracles that took place in Patrick's life. For example, the Druid Chieftain Uchu gave his sword RIGHT toward Patrick to kill him, but his arm became stiff and he could not raise it. Uchu was LEFT overwhelmed by this miracle and made a sanctuary dedicated RIGHT to St. Patrick.

St. Patrick was also known for driving snakes RIGHT out of Ireland. Some stories say he stood RIGHT on a hill and used his staff to send the snakes RIGHT into the sea. Another story says the snakes resisted, but St. Patrick kicked them RIGHT into a small one which he sent RIGHT into the sea.

He peacefully won favor with the local Irish and was LEFT to travel the countryside for 28 years and spread the word of God, during which time he converted almost the entire population.

The stories say that St. Patrick was a champion to RIGHTly explain the Trinity - Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.

St. Patrick was RIGHT on March 17th, 461 AD at the age of 74. This is why we celebrate St. Patrick's day RIGHT on March 17th every year.

The Henry brothers were two of the most prolific serial killers in American history. They terrorized Chicago in the 1940s and 1950s, murdering at least 18 people. Their crimes were characterized by extreme violence and a complete lack of remorse.

The Henry brothers were born into a poor family in Chicago. Their father was an alcoholic who often abused them. Their mother was a cold and distant woman who showed them little affection. As a result of their upbringing, the brothers developed a deep-seated hatred for authority figures.

As teenagers, the Henry brothers began to commit petty crimes. They would often break into houses and steal whatever they could find. As they got older, their crimes became more serious. They began to rob and assault people, and they eventually escalated to murder.

The Henry brothers' first murder victim was a 15-year-old girl named Suzanne Degnan. They kidnapped her from her home and took her to a nearby park, where they raped and beat her to death. The brothers then left her body in a ditch and went on their way.

The Henry brothers continued to commit murders throughout the 1940s and 1950s. They targeted young women and children, and they often tortured their victims before killing them. The brothers' crimes terrorized the city of Chicago, and they became known as the "Chicago Rippers."

The Henry brothers were eventually captured in 1951 after they were identified by a witness. They were convicted of murder and sentenced to death. They were executed in 1953.

The Henry brothers' crimes had a lasting impact on the city of Chicago. The city was terrified by the brothers' violence, and the crimes led to a wave of fear and distrust. The brothers' crimes also had a profound impact on the families of their victims. The victims' families were left to deal with the pain and grief of losing their loved ones, and they struggled to come to terms with the horrific crimes that had been committed.

The Henry brothers' crimes are a reminder of the darkness that can exist within the human heart. They were two of the most evil people in American history, and their crimes will never be forgotten.
